CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

4.1 Conclusions

To be concluded, translating the transcripts of Geology Museum's website as medium to preserve the heritages of Indonesia's culture could be done as long as we paid more attention to the data sources. The most important thing during translating in geology Museum was considering the different structure between Indonesia as source language and English as target language and how the meaning in each language could be combined in its structure.

Even though the problem always emerged during translating Indonesia transcripts, if we re-construct, make coherences to the structure of the data source and its meaning components, it can be sure that the translating result would be natural.

4.2 Suggestions

Based on the earlier explanation, there are several suggestions that are defined as follows:

1. The contributor, Geology Museum staff information, should more pay attention to the using of language in providing information.
2. The contributor, Geology Museum staff information, should really pay attention to the presenting data source in website document.

3. The contributor, Geology Museum staff information, should also pay attention to the structure of source language as the data source in Geology Museum's website.
4. The contributor, Geology Museum staff information, should carefully pay attention the validity of data source in delivering of information process.