ABSTRACT

Cv Abadi store is a store that sells a wide range of kind hulled rice. Management activities of the store is still not computerized, it at least can lead to errors in data management and sales transactions.By building software fromthis study are expected to be very helpful in the management.

In this study the research methods used by the methods of descriptive and action, where the source data in the form ofprimary data and secondary data. Development of a Prototype model system with built in accordance with the needs, and pay attention to every stage to be traversed in the development ofthis system.With the software developer Java, Netbeans IDE 6.7.1 and MySQL as the database of any data and informationthat exist in the system itself.

With the development of this software is expected to further assist each activity and the activity undertaken, particularly indata processing and sales transactions. So that the storemanagement can be optimized and achieve desired goals.

Keywords:
Information systems, data processing, sales of hulled rice