ABSTRACT

Information Systems Officer at Yayasan Budi Bakti junior high school is needed because the system running is still done manually, problems that often happens is the process of managing employee data is still stored in the archive so that they require a fairly large, is still often the case redundancy of data or duplicate data between data employee and salary data.

Research method that has been use is dekriptif method than also can defined as problem-solving processes that investigated with describe the state of subject and object in the present study, the method approach system that has been use is a method of structured analysis and design methods, while in developing the system using the Prototype method.

From the results of testing with test cases and results, then built a prototype of Human Resources Information Systems and drawn the conclusion that this system can assist and facilitate the process of staffing and data management can minimize the data redundancy.

Keywords : System, information, employee