Yura-Yuri Gesture As The Media Of Learning Japanese Gesture

ABSTRACT

The making of a learning media is useful for Japanese learning, including Japan culture like Japanese gesture. In Japanese, gesture is called miburi. Miburi is a form of nonverbal communication in which visible bodily actions communication particular messages. Learner can feel comfortable and intresting when learn Japanese gesture with the learning media.

On this research, writer using reserch and development method. To make the media writer used Macromedia Flash Pro 8, Adobe Photoshop CS2, and Ulead Video Editor. In this research writer gives explanation about media making process, media design process, and media user response. The writer conducted a research to students of Japanese literary UNIKOM that consists of three students of first year, three students of second year and three students of third year.

The research was done in sixth month, start from January until June. On January, writer collected the data, on February-April making media, on May to divide media and inquiry, and on Juny making research report.

From the research result,writer given good response. The writer hopes that the media of learning Japanese gesture can increase your motivation for learn Japanese Culture.

Bandung, Juli 2011

Fitriyah