ABSTRACT

The research is entitled "Analysis of Governess Condition In Anne Bronte's Agnes Grey And Its Relation with The Author". In this research the writer choose Anne Bronte's novel because the writer is interested in to know the governess condition at that time and also to know relation between experiences of the author with her own work. In the novel, the plot tells about a journey of the young woman who works as a governess.

In this research the writer uses descriptive method and structuralism genetic approach as a way to analyze the work. By using descriptive method the writer is able to describe, to indentify, and to analyze the data on the work. Whereas structuralism genetic approach is used to know about governess condition and also the relation between experiences of the author as governess with her own work. Structuralism genetic approach is also used by the writer as general theory in analyzing data.

The results of this research are the governess condition at that time makes governess as the best profession for the women; although governess is also considered as lower profession at that time. The women choose governess as their profession to help financial of their family. The research also explains about important role of governess in the plot and influence of the author in her own work.

Key words:

1. Governess condition
2. Structuralism genetic