Abstract

In the development times, accounting information system experience a variety of problem in it's implementation. Information technology dan capabilities of user is a few things that affect the quality of accounting information system applied to company bussines. This research is done to know how existence of the influence of information technology and user capabilities to accounting system information quality on Head Office PT Pos Indonesia Bandung.

The methods undertaken in this research is descriptive method and verificative method of using primary data and disseminate the questionnaire as collector of master data to users of accounting information system in Head Office PT Pos Indonesia Bandung with total sample is 30 respondents who selected based on criteria with purposive sampling approach.

The Result observationaling showed that information technology and user capabilities has the significantly effect, to quality of accounting information system in Head Office PT Pos Indonesia Bandung.

Keyword: Information Technology, User Capabilities, Accounting System infomation Quality