ABSTRACT

Selaras Tailor is a company engaged in the sale of services fasion that serve a wide variety of clothing, sewing tools and received stitches services for various types of clothing. The system is running in Selaras Tailor are still using manual systems , such as the sales process. Selaras Tailor only serve the sale of products to the customers who come directly into Selaras Tailor where the present media campaign will be undertaken is still offline as word of mouth, flyers and pamphlets which are not broad range of promotion. The purpose of research to make the design of web-based sales information system that will facilitate transaction processing and data recording .

The method used is to use Object Oriented approach Analysis and Design with UML support. Method and Object Oriented Programming prototype used in the development of software, programming languages used in designing and implementing sales information system is to use php web-based application that is Dreamweaver 8 and the database used is PhpMyAdmin.

Information systems are built is expected to handle the problems that exist in harmony Tailor in the sale, so that process customer transactions in compliance with the request would be run more Effectively and efficiently. And that is especially important is the company is Able to carry out its activities properly, both in terms of system and quality of service.

Keywords: information systems, sales