CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

4.1 Conclusion

In order to make a book, we should know about our target reader. It helps us to decide about the content of the book that will be written. Beside that we also choose the diction of the book because it will help the target reader understand the content of the book easier. In this case, that is book for the elementary school students. Generally the elementary school students do not have large number of vocabularies, and then the writer of the book should use the simple vocabulary and does not use a complex structure for the sentences.

4.2 Suggestion

In this job training report, the writer discusses about the diction in writing short story for the elementary school. This job training report needs some critics to make the writer more comprehensive in the next research.

For the suggestion, the writer has some suggestions for the student who will take the job training course that are:

a. Prepare yourself for job training course, by choosing an institution to do a job training there.

b. You should find the problem that you want to research in your job training report and do your best in your job training report.

b. c. Discuss your research carefully and correctly to make the reader understand about your job training report properly.

c.

d. For the English Department the writer only suggests to give more subjects for helps the students who do their job training report. So the students will be ready for the job training course.

e.